

This course gives the opportunity to explore the knitwear design process from concept to finished product. It's aim is to equip students with the visual design skills and complete knitwear knowledge. It is purely, developed for students interested in both fashion and knitted textile fabrications. It covers all aspects of fashion, clothing and knitwear at industrial and operational practices. External study visit to directional exhibitions, trade fairs, companies, museums and craft guilds are organized through out the duration of the course to keep students in touch with the latest trends and developments. This specialization requires the students to work on state of the art machines like the computerized, flat stoll. The students are also exposed to the techniques and variants in the circular and Flat knitting manufacturing techniques, possible structure developments, surface treatment, processing and garmenting.

The focus is on increasing commercial knowledge and awareness through live industry design challenges. This course has exceptional industry connections and during the final semester students are encouraged to develop their portfolio and professionals skills in preparation for their future in the industry. Students build on their own experience and areas of interest by producing a portfolio, collection or equivalent body of work. They are taught to design and evolve a visual culture form on the basis of theoretical study.

COURSE CONTENTS

Phase I: Development of Design & Basic Skills

To establish a stable foundation on issues relating to the industry, the students firstly acquire the Design Skills such as Elements of Design, Elements of Fashion, Fashion Illustration, History of Costumes, Art Appreciation etc.

Emphasis is also on basic skills such as Knitting Technology, Knitted Fabric Design Techniques, Pattern Making, Draping, Garment Construction, Textile Science, Introduction to Indian Textiles, Dyeing & Printing and Computer Applications.

PHASE 2: Development OF Professional Skills

The thrust is to give specialised inputs in all the essential subjects such as Design Process, Thematic Approach to Design, Circular Knitting Technique, Computerized Knitting, Apparel Production Planning & Control, Apparel Marketing & Merchandising, Fashion Buying & Merchandising, Quality Assurance in Knits, Processing Techniques for Knits and Computer Aided Design

The intrinsic features of this course also help in the development of personality and professional traits.

Fashion Presentations

The students undertake an extensive research in various fields such as fashion forecasting and fashion garment designing. To augment it, they also develop prototype samples and display their work to be critically appreciated. Such exercises not only enhance their knowledge but also hone their professional presentation skills.

Industrial Projects and Industrial Visits

Students are also encouraged to take up specific industrial projects in areas such as Garment Design, Fabric Design or Fashion Forecasting.

Students are taken to various industrial units to impart practical knowledge of all the processes involved, as well as demonstrations of the equipment required in garment production.

IMPORTANT FEATURES OF THE CURRICULUM

Internship

The 2 years of study include 6 weeks of internship programme. This is intended to impart students with an appreciation and working knowledge of the industry. Students get first hand exposure of the work environment of the apparel manufacturing system. Thus they are prepared to accept the challenges of the industry and can correlate the theory with practice. Workshops, Trade fairs, Conferences and Seminars are important elements of the study programme.

Design Collection

The course culminates with a design collection show presented by the passing out students. It encapsulates the various skills grasped during three years. The Knitwear collection is a reflection of Designer's creativity in the area of fabric development combined with garment designing and construction.

Career Opportunities

The course has been designed to create well rounded professionals, equipped to handle the challenges of Knitted Fabric and Garment Design & Development for domestic and export markets. They can pursue careers as Designers, Merchandisers, Quality Controller in the domestic and export garment units.
